

Challenge of Science Leadership 3 Day Course

Accelerate your journey to science leadership

Are you changing your role, or are at a crossroads in your professional career?

Are you facing difficult challenges that require you to learn new skills?

Are you frustrated by not having enough time for your science? Do you feel that your work is not achieving enough impact?

Are you having to influence others over whom you have little authority? Is this holding you back with your work?

We've learned that although many scientists didn't come into science to be leaders, they often find themselves in leadership roles early in their career. Even later on they may still have had little training in leadership skills.

This course has been successfully delivered both as an open course and in-house to over 1500 scientists and science professionals from over 100 organisations in the UK, Europe and North America.

This 3 day in person Course provides core tools and practice to accelerate your journey to science leadership.

Feedback from Course participants:

"Definitely the best course of its type that I have been on, with realistic goals and challenges, in an environment that also gives you the opportunity to learn from other people in your own professional sphere who are experiencing similar concerns"

"The way you created an atmosphere on the course was exceptional. Sometimes I close up in a training course and can often be worried about how I come across, but this environment gave me confidence to express myself with honesty."

"It was a fantastic course that has had a big (and hopefully lasting) effect on me. I have already told many people about it. I felt bereft on the Friday - I missed the people and the special energy in the room. I left feeling like my brain had been stretched, my mind had expanded, and I have a set of tools/strategies which I fully intend to apply to my job and to my life outside my job. It is clear how much thinking has gone into this course; it is unique, and I hope that more scientists get the opportunity to go on it. I felt privileged to be on it. Thank you very much."

At the course you get:

- An integrated toolkit with the opportunity to practice on your own work.
- Many opportunities to work in small groups and share experience.
- Time to reflect on your learning.
- An action plan to move you forward.

The course will enable you to:

- Improve your ability to think strategically.
- Influence others more effectively.
- Feel more confident in your leadership role.
- Leave with a plan of action.

Fees & Registration

Course fees are £550 + VAT

For more information see the Barefoot Website and Booking page

Contact:

Peter Redstone
Barefoot Thinking Company Ltd

Tel: 07967 808923
peter@barefoot-thinking.com