

Workshops that Work

A practical toolkit for designing and delivering effective workshops

Do you need to deliver successful workshops in your role?

Is it sometimes difficult to get the results you want?

Do you need to bring together groups with different interests and perspectives?

Can it be a challenge to sustain people's attention and energy levels?

Workshops matter...

If successful they can contribute to knowledge, communication and mutual understanding. If not, they can do the opposite.

This Course provides the know-how to help you achieve workshops that work.

Quotes from course participants (2024):

"Clear guidance on how to plan workshops and what is needed to maintain/retain audience engagement. This will help me in planning future conferences/workshops"

"I will use the process for workshop design and stress testing immediately as part of workshop planning. I got some good ideas about tools such as energisers which I can plan into future events."

"Friendly and safe space to experiment. Everyone was encouraged to contribute (without pressure) and the energy of the trainers was great. I also enjoyed the order in which the content was delivered and it wasn't death by PowerPoint."

"A great couple of days. Excellent trainers and engaging throughout. Scientists can be a tough crowd to get to stand up and participate in training of this nature and the way that everyone threw themselves into it was testament to its quality and success."

During the Course you will get:

- An integrated toolkit for designing and facilitating successful workshops.
- Time to develop your own workshop design and practice facilitating part of your workshop.
- Opportunities to work in small groups and share feedback and experience.
